

Explore our Training in Psychoanalysis Monday, 14th May 2012, 8 -10pm

BPA/BAP, 37 Mapesbury Road, London, NW2 4HJ

Come and hear presentations about psychoanalysis and the BPA Training.
Discover whether this might be a further training that would suit you.
Discuss how you might meet the requirements to be a candidate for training.

The British Psychoanalytic Association (BPA) has approval from the International Psychoanalytical Association (IPA) to train psychoanalysts. The training commenced in 2009 and yearly intakes are planned.

The training is part-time and seminars are held in the evenings to enable candidates to continue to work during their training. The length of training varies, with a minimum length of 4 years.

On qualification the candidate will:

- Be recognised as a practising Psychoanalyst within the UK and internationally
- Become a member of the International Psychoanalytical Association
- Be part of the international community of psychoanalysis with access to IPA congresses and conferences world wide
- Gain Registration with the British Psychoanalytic Council
- Become a Member of the BAP and participate in its lively scientific life
- Have access to post-graduate seminars, scientific meetings and courses run specifically by the BPA
- Enjoy the enriching stimulation of a network of colleagues in Europe and worldwide

Admission is free. Refreshments will be available

Alternatively, we will also be present at the BAP's Open Day on Saturday, 17th March 2012 to answer any questions you may have about the BPA Training in relation to other trainings in the field.

For further information, please email:
training@psychoanalysis-bpa.org or visit www.psychoanalysis-bpa.org